The
BLUE MANTLE

A Book about Saint Mary's College

published at Holy Cross, Indiana
by the Class of 1949

Dedication

Through her deep devotion to Holy Cross and as our adviser and guide, Sister Kathryn Marie has taught us "the Saint Mary's way." A native of Washington, D. C., Sister received her B.A. from the University of Notre Dame in 1925 and her Master's degree from there in 1930. During these years, she began an intensive study of the works of Paul Claudel. After spending a part of the year 1930 in Europe and several years in teaching and administrative work in Washington, D.C., Sister came to Saint Mary's as dean of women in 1938 and was appointed to the position of superior in 1948. In affection and appreciation we wish to dedicate to her our BLUE MANTLE.

Aim, Policies Ideal

(From our college president's statement in the catalogue)

Saint Mary's College is dedicated to the whole girl, to what she is and what she can become.

The training of her mind is its aim. Its policies are determined by their aim.

They are directed to the ideal of intelligent womanhood.

They embrace a fourfold discipline based on a fourfold need: physical, intellectual, social, religious.

Physical training cares for the health and recreational life of the girl, in and out of school.

Intellectual training is the end, the special function of the college.

By it the college seeks to teach the student to think.

Social training is an asset which prepares her to live graciously with others.

The student, in every process of her education, lives in and for God.

Religious training qualifies her for the fullness of that life.

This fourfold training prepares her for complete and potentially perfect womanhood.

It trains her to be a normal, useful, intelligent, reverent member of her parish, her community.

Saint Mary's college receives the girl as a person with a teachable mind.

It matriculates her as a student.

She is a student in terms of her willingness to learn to think.

Her education is the fulfillment of this desire.

Her college trains her for temporal existence.

This is of relative importance.

It educates her for immortality, for infinity, for the Beatific Vision.

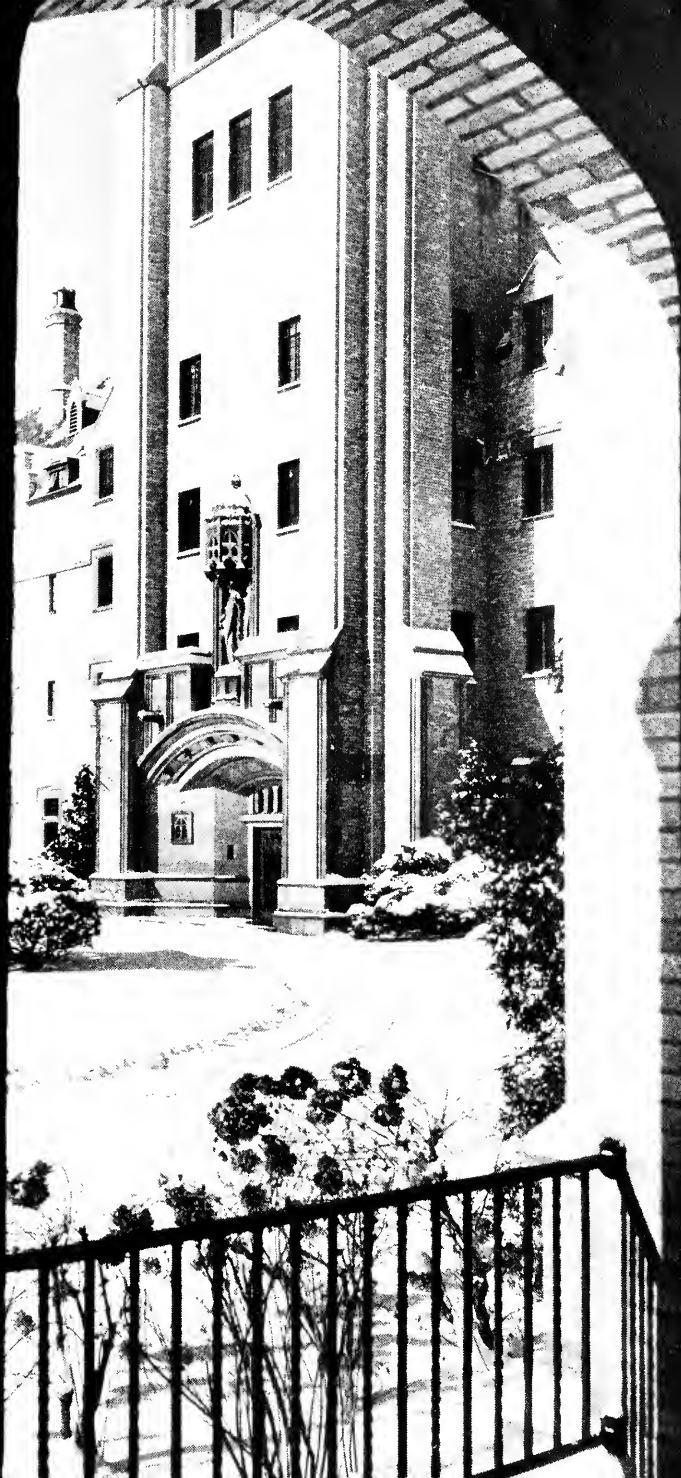

This is of ultimate importance.

The communication of this education for immortality is her vocation to the world.

By this statement and integration of aim, policies, and ideal, Saint Mary's defines itself as a liberal college.

THE variety of offices to which we have elected Marianne bears witness to our appreciation of her and her worth. She not only gets things done, but done with pleasure, too. And no matter how numerous her assignments are, Marianne always has room for one more job, one more party, or one more friend. One of the few brown-eyed blondes in captivity, her choice of costume colors adds to her striking appearance. Marianne finds conversation and room-visiting her favorite pastimes, and is looking forward to several years as a secretarial career girl.

GOING out for hockey?" Eileen encourages everyone to join in her Saturday morning pastime. Coming from Rye, she possesses an unquenchable conviction that New York State is tops. With this in mind she is usually passing out sections of the Sunday edition of the Times. If you're looking for a hatpin, a stamp, or just the right birthday card, ask Eileen; she's sure to have it. A great pal, she has a bubbling laugh that is a liberal invitation to join in the fun. Basketball has a loyal supporter in Eileen, but what she really enjoys is a good game of pinochle.

MARILYN likes to spend her spare time "just visiting" and usually wants to talk about home. Since her trip to Las Vegas, Nevada, last summer, she's been a booster of the west. To prove it, horseback riding is her hobby, and in her junior year she won a ribbon in the horse show. Marilyn is also interested in Spanish—both the language and the people, she says. After graduation she's going to teach in the commercial field where her pleasant manner will be more than a mere social asset.

NANCY'S pixie smile is familiar to all her friends at Saint Mary's, and no Rec party would be complete without her sad rendition of "Der Fuehrer's Face". Her thespian talents were exhibited at the Christmas party skit and in the class play. When it's school that's concerned, Nancy is quiet, serious, hard-working, a widely read student. Her greatest weaknesses are horseback riding and an English accent that would put even Will Shakespeare to shame. Her collection of stories about herself in real life are as fascinating as they are unique.

THE FOUR years have been busy, happy ones for Jeanne. She will always keep a special place in her heart for Saint Mary's because she's "never known such a host of sincere girls who will share your problems and fun, and enhance the value of every experience." A perfectionist in her work, Jeanne has an extrovert personality which expresses itself in panel discussions at the International Relations meetings, in her work as chairman of various committees, and in the planning of the Christmas skit. Her storehouse of knowledge makes her an interesting conversationalist.

A SPARKLING personality and lovable ways are characteristic of this typical southern belle. Imparting a feeling of friendliness wherever she goes, Jeanne is as much at home on the golf course as on the beach, at bridge or at a ball. She likes Burl Ives ballads, and is one of our local authorities on the best books, movies and plays. Gifted with the art of impersonation, she is never without an audience while telling her favorite story in her inimitable "Pedro" accent. All to all, Jeanne is a girl you'll never forget.

DESPITE the fact that Tex has lived with the Army for twenty-one years, she had to come to Saint Mary's to see an Army football game. True to her military heritage, her cheerful greeting (even on Monday mornings) proves that she has applied the principle of "rise and shine." And we have found her shining through her four years of active participation in school projects. An able representative on the student council for two years, she still found time for cheer leading which gave pep to all our athletic endeavors. What would the senior class do without its officer girl, Louise?

NANCY has greatly enhanced class plays and skits by her enthusiastic acting and directing. Neatness and accuracy personified, she is the dependable-as-an-Elgin girl of the senior class. As proof of her versatility, she's played such diversified roles as a lovesick girl in Our Town and the middle-aged theatrical aspirant in The Ladies of the Mop. "When you're miles and miles away," she said to a freshman, "the spirit of Saint Mary's will live deep within you. And no matter how far you are, when you hear Saint Mary's mentioned you'll perk up to say proudly, 'That's my school!'"

FROM the lone star State of rootin', tootin' cowhands and "sage in bloom like perfume" hails Mary Jo. Unlike her historical ancestors, she is the essence of calmness and tranquility. With an aptitude for Spanish, this senorita's delicate voice lends itself readily to como esta usted and manana. Many things come easily to Mary Jo (or so it seems) and among them is her skill with the needle. A comment on an attractive blouse or skirt will often draw forth an admission that she made it herself and "it was so simple." The one thing that can ruffle this agreeable senior is a disparaging comment on Texas.

A CERTAIN unique spontaneity and utterly charming enthusiasm characterize all that Nancy does. Her rather pert though somewhat regal appearance are nicely balanced by quick and energetic action. Nancy's broad scope of interests, including historical novels, the music of Liszt and Chopin, as well as current affairs, have contributed in no small measure to her success as a student and as a student teacher. We will always remember Nancy for her excellent dramatic portrayal of the superintendent of nurses in our freshman play and for her prominent roles and directing in later productions.

WHEN SUE came to Saint Mary's, Rosary College lost a sophomore with a warm smile and story-book face. Stage crews, basketball, and pattern dances keep her busy, but she can always find a minute to tell a story on her brothers. As photography editor of Blue Mantle, she spent many hours walking around the campus loaded down with equipment and discussing the composition of the next picture with Mr. Rex. Our attitude toward Sue was evident when we chose her to be Sodality president. Through the year and as May Queen, she guides the Sodality to Mary, her Queen of the May.

LOIE IS the girl who seldom returned from town without a surprise. Thoughtful and generous, her usually serious face sometimes betrays her love of fun. Just listen to her story of the tooth! It is inevitable, though, that before each exam, Loanne will say, "Honestly, I don't know a thing!" The Honors Convocations, however, have proved differently. Her athletic activities consist mainly of frequent walks to Roseland. In dramatics, Loie is usually found working on the lights committee. Though she yearns to own a Russian wolfhound someday, for the present, she'll settle for the stuffed variety.

One of the two Spanish majors in the senior class, Gloria has a command of the language and speaks it fluently. She attributes this to the fact that she spoke español before English. This should insure her success in the diplomatic service which she hopes to enter. Among Gloria's hobbies, the love of music is first. Debussy, Chopin, and Brahms give her most enjoyment, but for dancing, Cugat's the man.

An English major, Peg enjoys early Greek drama, but is particularly fond of Charles Peguy whom she admires for his scope and power, and Tennessee Williams whose delicate Glass Menagerie is truly theater. The ability to write her best poems in the shortest time imaginable is her greatest asset. Peg is planning to put her convertible into use this summer, but she'll have to take to the water to get to Nassau where she hopes to spend a few months acquiring a sun tan past description.

This loyal daughter of the Mesabi Range area typifies, in the best sense, the average college girl in appearance, hobbies and wide range of interests. An avid reader and a mature literary critic, Tonto favors books on current problems, history, politics, and biography. Sympathy and understanding and an enthusiasm for the fine art of conversation make Tonto a good friend and a welcome addition to any college group.

Yet for all her liveliness and pranks, Lois is a student with a wide variety of talents. A Sodality officer, member of the Columbine Club, and an enthusiastic worker for her beloved W.A.A., she participates in many activities but basketball is her favorite. An art major, Jeanne was chairman of the Decoration Committee for the Junior Prom and worked hard on our long-remembered ballerina girls. After graduation she plans to go on to art school and somewhere in between satisfy her yen for travel. She is particularly eager to go to Paris where her French minor should go far towards keeping her enjoyable. Though she wears clothes beautifully herself, she doesn't intend to go into fashion designing, preferring to work on illustrations for books and magazines.

WHAT MORE appropriate name could we give our dark-haired, brown-eyed Mary Ann than Raven? Spending second semester of her junior year in Reidinger House, she could be found scanning magazines for current budget problems or menu planning. A future dietician, she plans to put theory into practice interning at the University of Michigan. Should you stop Raven on Saturday morning she might be, "off to the Textile Lab to sew arms on rag dolls." As president of the Home Economics Club, her efficiency and originality found an outlet in Christ Child projects. Raven's impeccable grooming and disposition help to make her one of our candidates for the ideal Saint Mary's girl.

Her summer plans include participation in the course "Europe Today" offered at the University of Fribourg, Switzerland. We remember the birthday parties she and Joanne hostessed, and Marilyn as one of a succession of little boys in our class plays. We think of her as the star jumper on Sports Day, the donor of candy for an entire class, the girl with the enviable tan after Christmas in Florida, and "straight man" in the acrobatic acts. Although she always dismisses her worries with a chuckle, she does have them—things like overdrawn eight-thirties, assignments that are almost overdue, and Great Books. But these trifles couldn't help working out for someone who loves life like our Marilyn.

Honor roll, 3 semesters

WITH THREE Mother Pauline Awards to her credit and numerous contributions to both Static and Chimes, Margaret Mary is one of the senior's most promising writers. The books in her fast-and-solid growing library give her fine inspiration for literary endeavors. The Commuters' Club (all sixty of them) will vouch for M. M.'s graciousness as a hostess. Although swimming, skating and tennis provide amusement the year round, she has a fondness for horses and won a ribbon for riding in her freshman year.

WHEREVER there is music—by Romberg, Porter, maybe Tschaikowsky—there's Pat! And not only does she love music, but she can sing. Added to this, a little drama and a lot of art do not make her at all a dilettante, but a versatile and interesting personality. Dependability? Originality? Pat leads in both. Not many at Saint Mary's can reach her mark, and not many have given so much to the school. Her devotion to SMC is evident in her own words . . . " 'Togetherness in Saint Mary's love' will always mean Saint Mary's to me."

WHEN IT came to choosing a major, June had no difficulty. Her deep-rooted love of people, especially children, led this Washingtonian into the field of sociology. Her summer work at city playgrounds has provided her with experience and an enviable sun-tan. She hopes to do graduate work at Catholic University after commencement. June's unique grace and her consistently cheerful animation have made her a coveted dancing partner and one of the 49ers favorite cheer leaders. Her participation in any project is a sure sign of its success. How can we ever forget June's matchless smile and its attendant geniality and willingness?

THERE'S no one quite like Sis, our "must" guest for all festive occasions. A contradiction in terms, she is non-athletic and yet one of our star equestriennes; a maker of naive questions yet an enthusiastic theology major; perpetually sleepy; yet amazing everyone with her output of energy. Though she wears an air of unconcern, it is always Marie who is first to take up someone's tray. Noted for her hospitality both at home and at school, Marie's house-party shower was the talk of the Saint Mary's season.

ONCE YOU have met her you will never forget her. And more than likely she will never forget you. Murph's retentive memory and sincerity have made her known to everyone at Saint Mary's. Her poignant wit has given scores of us "best laughs ever" down in the Rec. Always unselfish with the use of her time, Murph is the girl you'll find behind the spotlights or in front of the footlights come play time or Variety Show. Her talent for writing song lyrics and dialogue have contributed to numerous successful entertainments. No one can tell a story quite like Jean. She's surely the only one who can gripe about school and still make us love Saint Mary's.

ENTHUSIASTICALLY Mary Lou enters into her varied activities, including the door-to-door delivery of Our Sunday Visitor, the chairmanship of the Student Relief Campaign in our junior year, and her work with the missions. She can quickly change from the serious hard worker that she is to be the spark that brings light and life to the party. When she has time, Mary Lou enjoys reading mystery stories. After graduation she would like to spend a year in New York City visiting libraries and art galleries. We think all things will come to her somehow, some way, because of her own generosity.

FOR BEING such a little girl, Mary Lou can outdo almost anyone when it comes to the ability to get things done well and in a hurry. Every spare minute is spent in the art department for, besides being her major, art is also her favorite pastime. She collects pictures of horses and, like a true Kentuckian, loves them. Her talents also run along dramatic lines, as "Our Town" and the Christmas Plays of our junior and senior years have proved. Mary Lou is a good storyteller, too. It was she who made our Junior Prom successful as its chairman and queen.

THE CASUAL, independent, and even blase attitude so typical of Pat masks one of the most versatile girls in the senior class. She wields as mean a brush in portraiture as she does in still life, and has distinguished herself in sewing too. Often disgusted with college men in general, she philosophizes freely to any one who will listen. A familiar picture in the hall is Pat singing, "I am too beautiful for one man alone . . ." but still in keeping with her many-sided tastes is the more serious pastime of perusing Gibran's poetry or studying Van Gogh's technique. # Junior Journal

The class of '50 began its junior activities in mid-summer by letter-writing to the new "little sisters" and by sending them special Saint Mary's pamphlets, edited by Lee Iserson. The new juniors returned to college early in September to usher in the new-comers with freshman welcome week. There were parties in the Rec, clubhouse, and Saint Angela's Hall; informal gatherings in big sisters' rooms; the faculty-freshman tea, all patterned to make little sister feel at home in her home away from home. The Madonna Night service in October symbolized our dedication to the Blessed Mother.

Under the guiding help of Sister M. Rita Claire, newly-appointed junior class sponsor, the juniors carried on their activities, carefully supervised by the class officers: Jean Malooly, president; Helen Kennedy, student council representative; Joanne Fink, vice-president; Margaret Quinn, secretary; Marjorie McKeon, treasurer; Margaret Kessell, dance chairman; and Rosemary Treacy, day-student representative.

The sports year began at Saint Mary's with the hockey tournament. The juniors suffered defeat despite the capable captaining of Rita Wilson. Later in the school year the juniors surrendered their twice-won volleyball championship to their little sisters. Geneal Kraemer directed this class of '50 team that came in second. On January 22, Mary Hovorka and Rita Wilson were chosen captain and manager, respectively, of the blue-and-white basketball team.

The juniors suffered another defeat—this one in the annual play tournament. "All on a Summer's Day," a light comedy, was directed by Peggy Gardner, and was the junior entry in the contest.

In the art lime-light among the juniors was Ginny Logan, art editor of Static, who illustrated a new book, When Going's Toughest by Brother Ernest, C.S.C.

The high-light of the school year was the annual junior-sponsored Christmas party. The "Lumen Christi" brought new beauty to the traditional candlelight ceremony. President Jean Malooly addressed the dinner guests with a few words of yuletide greeting. The junior choir added originality to the program by the singing of Christmas carols during the banquet. After dinner, all retired to the lounge for the skit starring Mary Cucchi and Jean Suelzer as the Christmas mice, and featuring Santa (Mary Jo Capen) and his bag of gifts. The next morning the college residents were awakened by the angelic voices of the junior carolers, calling them to participation in the Notre Dame-Saint Mary's family Mass.

Shortly before semester vacation the class gathered in the clubhouse for a farewell party in honor of three of the soon-to-be-wed junior classes: Carol Morin, Marilyn Brennan, and Marilee Gibbons. Four other juniors also left us at the semesters—for Reidinger House: Sally Cantwell, Jean Hormuth, Bernie Lang, and Helene Preece.

The Junior Prom came in February with an appropriate Valentine theme, "Heartbreaker". Something new in the way of an artificial mountain stream, complete with peacock, was tried ("Keep your dates away from the decorations.") Chairman Marge Kessell did an excellent job of supervising the dance. Music was provided by Gene Hull and his orchestra.

Chairmanship of the annual variety show was undertaken by Kay Motta. This junior-sponsored affair, entitled "Through the Days", was shown March 10 and 11. It featured, among other stars, Penny George and her song styling.

Another junior project, and this one entirely new, was the decoration of the Rec. Ginny Logan headed a committee that planned the painting and general face-lifting of the room. Coral-and-grey walls replaced the old drab ones, and new floral curtains now grace the windows.

Bernie Lang, Student Relief Chairman, supervised another new social project, the Masquerade Ball, on February 26. Gene Hull and his orchestra played for the costumed dancers in the balloon-decorated Louis XVI Ballroom.

Examinations, picnics, parties, and Sports Day brought the school year of '48-'49 to a close. The juniors climaxed the year with Cap and Gown Night when they received their symbolic attire for the senior year ahead.

Sophomore Saga

After greeting friends and exchanging tales of summer fun, the Class of '51 resumed their former pursuits, encouraged and aided by Sister M. Sophia, the class sponsor, and the officers: Margaret Culhane, president; Therese Murphy, student council representative; Mary Bukolt, vice-president; Patricia Bagwell, secretary; Mary Lou Trainor, treasurer; and Barbara Hepting, dance chairman.

Activities were initiated with a weiner roast given in the Glen for their "Big Sisters". The autumn air rang with the familiar school songs, and "Many Thanks" rolled around all too soon. Early in October, the Founder's Day skit enabled them to have a glimpse of the past, a knowledge of the present, and a dream of the future. Costumes humorously revealed the past, and a speculative wardrobe for the future was indicative of trends to come.

The eagerly awaited "Midnight Masquerade" found couples dancing against a silhouetted background. The motif was carried out by masks tied with a silver ribbon to tiny black fans. Later in the evening a grand March led by Barbara Hepting, chairman of the dance, and her escort helped to make this first formal a memorable occasion.

Potential stage careers were inaugurated at the Play Tournament in November. Grease paint was abandoned for stadium boots and double mittens as the sophomores prepared gaily for their campus caroling, following the Christmas party. The crisp stillness of the night was broken by the carolers as they kept alive the traditional singing at Bertrand Hall, the infirmary, and the convent.

Blue jeans and paint brushes were the order of the day while preparing for Winter Carnival. The halls and Rectangle told a gay narrative of winter fun from toboggans and sleighs to hopeful ice skater and timid spectators. Despite the absence of ice and snow, the afternoon of January 8 saw Meg Schrock crowned queen of "Snow Daze" on the island bedecked with candy canes. Combined class efforts for the evening's entertainment found the "Snow Boat" loaded with a cargo of fun.

While January volleyball tournament saw the sophomore team defeated, redoubled efforts were exerted to start a new chapter with the basketball tournament in early April. Saturday morning sleep was sacrificed for practice, parodies were written, and the sophomore section of the gym kept up their morale with streamers of yellow and black. No spirits were dampened as the class cheered their team with hoarse voices.

Often gathering in the Club House on Saturday afternoon, the sophomores made fudge, sewed, and fixed scrapbooks for the children's Hospital.

With the coming of spring, the "botanists" toured the campus and took field trips to surrounding areas in search of evasive wild flowers. The math students, however, were confined within their four walls endeavoring to solve the complexity of triangles, but spring offered a temptation they could not resist and the inevitable picnic provided the last class get-together. As the school year drew to a close, Memorial Day offered the last opportunity for the sophomores to present a program for the school.

Looking at the past with serenity, they face the future with courage, and a prayer for the wisdom to realize their opportunities.

Freshman Focus

The class of '52 entered college very unobtrusively in September, but we were destined to have a lasting effect on the collective consciousness. To our utter amazement we found that all roommates had been psychologically planned. In fact, we're still wondering how 5' 8" Arkansas was paired with 5' Barb.

We must have looked pretty forlorn that first week because everyone gave parties for us—especially the juniors, who also showed us around the big, bad town of South Bend, gave needed moral support at the awesome faculty tea, and introduced us to Rosie's.

The bells of Saint Mary's came as quite a shock to us the morning after our arrival. However, we soon grew accustomed to them. That is, all except the eager freshman who got up one morning, dressed, and made her bed only to be informed by her roommate that it was 12:30 p.m., not 6:30 a.m.

We kept busy expanding double epichieremas, taking art trips to Chicago, and spending whole weeks camped in the library delving into the Reformation and working on research papers. The conclusion of most of our research was that we needed a guide to the complicated Reader's Guide.

And then, the first tea dance! A red letter day in all freshman diaries. We were terribly sorry for the poor boys who couldn't dance after their long hike over here. This was soon followed by the copasetic picnic the Notre Dame freshmen gave for us, and the Charity Ball, a big event in our young lives. We loved both of them.

The fun we had decorating the tree, the marvelous Christmas dinner, little Orvie Mouse, and the caroling at dawn are things we'll never forget as long as we remember Saint Mary's

We hurried back from Christmas vacation to make preparations for the Winter Carnival. We all agree that "Snowdaze" was even better than the advance notices had advertised.

A few (?) Southerners had trouble with the climate. They didn't know that if you hang out wet rugs on a cold day they will freeze!

Our notoriety increased when we became the first class with a police record. Some Chicagoans (and they're not the only ones) couldn't get used to the stop, wait, and walk signals at the street corners.

We were known as the Kampus Kids because we spent most of our time on campus, blind dates were all the rage, and everyone was talking about the two little fishies—Usual and Unusual—who swam in Tigris Cologne.

It was a wonderful year, one we'll never forget. Our deepest thanks to our sponsor, Sister M. Amadeus, to our Dean, Sister M. Mildred Dolores, and to Saint Mary's, we hope you love as much as we have to love you.

Sodality of Our Lady

The Sodality of Our Lady, under the guidance and patronage of the Blessed Virgin Mary, desires to make every girl at Saint Mary's "Mary-like in soul and body; Mary-like in mind and heart." This oldest and largest organization of the college aims to foster a deeper understanding and a greater love of the Mother of God. This year the Sodality was under the presidency of Sue Caron, who was assisted by the following officers: Mary Ann Fellingner, Sodality vice-president and chairman of the Mariology Commission; Joan Midkiff, secretary of the Sodality and president of the Mission Club; Lois Tripeny, vice-president of the Mission Club; Rosamund Feltes, treasurer of the Sodality and chairman of the Liturgy Commission.

The Reverend Matthew Schumacher, C.S.C., chaplain of the college, Reverend Leo Arnoult, O.P., teacher in the graduate school of Sacred Theology, and Reverend William O'Beirne, O.P., who teaches graduate and undergraduate theology, are the spiritual directors and counselors of the girls.

The Sodality finds itself the center of all liturgical activities. On December eighth, the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, new members are received in an impressive and inspiring ceremony. The Family Rosary, recited by the students in the Great Hall before Murillo's picture of Our Lady's Assumption, is an integral part of the Saint Mary's day. Another activity of the Sodality is the Spring Formal sponsored for the entire school. Every year the May Procession takes place on campus and provides one of the loveliest memories of all Sodality activities. Each Saint Mary's girl has the privilege of participating in this processional, which closes the activities of the religious calendar for the academic year. Sue Caron, as president, was May Queen and crowned the Blessed Mother in the Church of Loretto.

Mission Club

One has only to read the grateful letters which the Saint Mary's Mission Club receives from countries all over the world to realize how great the need is for work in this field. At their meetings, the girls discuss the various mission problems. Food, clothing, and money are sent to missionaries in Germany, India, Burma, China, the Philippines, North and South America, under the direction of the president, Joan Midkiff. At Christmas, baskets of food are distributed to poor families in South Bend and the surrounding areas, and boxes are sent to Europe.

In order to raise the necessary funds for their mission work, the club sponsors the annual Charity Ball, raffles a Hope Chest, and uses the money from the Sunday collections.

Assisting the president this year were: Lois Mae Tripeny, vice-president; Mary Brodie, secretary; and Catherine Liebmann, treasurer.

The National Federation of Catholic College students is the organized apostolate of student Catholic Action. The Saint Mary's unit of the NFCCS belongs to the Fort Wayne Region and has for its main purpose to unite the Catholic Action activities at Saint Mary's in order that the purpose of the National Federation might be more effectively and efficiently fulfilled. Some of the purposes of the National Federation are:

1. To contribute to Catholic lay leadership.
2. To promote solidarity and unity among the student bodies of American Catholic colleges and universities.
3. To represent its members in national and international affairs.
4. To act as a center for information on matters of interest to students.

Y.C.S.

Participation in the Young Christian Students is one of the many opportunities for Catholic leadership in Catholic Action offered to the Saint Mary's student. Their aim is an inspired apostolate ready with Christian answers to the problems of today's world.

This year, they were led by Ann McEniry. The Reverend Raymond Cour, C.S.C., and the Reverend McDonough, C.S.C., were the moderators. The organization is open to every student and functions through the individual classes.

Mary Lou O'Connor, Ann McEniry, Mary Ellen Molony, Shannon Dooley, Patricia Miller, Nan Walsh.

Standing: Marilynne McCarthy.

Student Council

Susan Wagner
Student Council President

Government shared "by the students and for the students," describes the student council privilege at Saint Mary's. Acting in collaboration with the administration, our student-elected council representatives, presidents, and official delegates discuss and act upon student problems, supervise study hours, arrange the student social calendar, and issue the familiar-to-freshmen Student Handbook. A true government, one through which the student body actually functions, our council strives for effective management of student affairs.

Art Club

This year, the Art Club reorganized by opening its membership to all those interested in art. The regular meetings, held on the second Thursday of each month, consisted of lectures and a movie on the Cathedral at Chartres with an explanatory commentary. Every Thursday evening, the studio was open to those interested in block printing, lettering, and posters, leatherwork, ceramics, and sketching.

During the year, a visiting artist, Mr. George Rickey, spent several days on campus, lecturing, demonstrating, and illustrating painting methods. Lectures were given by Barry Byrne, a prominent architect, and Miss Joan Morris. At an open house for the faculty and seniors, some of the students exhibited their work. At the end of the year, the seniors' comprehensive work was displayed.

El Club Santa Teresa

The Spanish Club brings together students from the East and West to promote understanding and friendship with Spain and the Spanish speaking countries of the Western Hemisphere. The club took its trip to South America this year via programs of colored slides; Mexican music; "Las Pasadas", the typical Christmas celebration in Mexico with a candlelight procession, singing, and a "pinata"; a variety of talks; and participation in the Inter-American Action Commission of the NF CCS this Fall and Spring. Every year the national organization El Instituto de las Espanas awards some member a medal for distinguished work.

Constance Melaro, Marie de Monleon,
Mary Ruth McGee, Eugenia Thompson.

LeCercle Jeanne L'Arc

Listed on the calendar of Le Cercle Jeanne D'Arc this year were numerous talks by the French speaking students at Saint Mary's. This was an aid in cultivating an interest in France and its sister countries, as well as in the language itself. Correspondence was carried on with Nellie, their adopted young French girl, and the gifts sent to her were greatly appreciated. The singing of Christmas carols in French helped to give added spirit to the annual Yuletide party held this year in the Pebble on December 9. Included in its plans for the Spring is a Paris style show. A French table in the dining room is also a dream to be realized in the near future.

The Vincentian Club of Saint Mary's is open to all students in the nursing department. It was organized with the objective of informing students of the new trends in the nursing profession.

At the first meeting of this year new members were introduced and the following officers elected: Mary Mackey, president; Joan Zaworski, vice-president; Rita Moliski, secretary; Virginia George, treasurer. In keeping with the spirit of the Diamond Jubilee of Nursing in the United States, there was a panel discussion on famous nursing leaders of the past seventy-five years at the November meeting. Some representatives of the club attended the District Nurses' Memorial Dinner and reported this to the club. The Christmas party, an annual event, was held at the Club House. Movies on recent medical discoveries and a spring picnic completed the club's year.

International Relations

Rita Wilson, Louise McGlynn, Nancy Bartley, Jean Murphy.

One of the most active groups on the campus is the International Relations Club. Its purpose is to develop a well informed student body articulate on current problems. It is open to all upperclassmen and offers special opportunities to students in the history and social science departments. Highlighting this year's activities were the club's sponsorship of United Nations Week, joint meetings with the Notre Dame International Relations Club, talks by several of the foreign students at Saint Mary's, and a talk by Mrs. Asrani sketching a brief political history of her native India. The club is affiliated with national organizations and shares in their programs. This year, delegates were sent to the UN Model Assembly at Hillsdale College.

Home Economics Club

Mary Ann Fellingner
Mary Ann Heaton
Margaret Kennedy
Helene Preece

Though the home economics majors and minors seem to be chiefly concerned with the science of cooking and the art of handiwork in their classes, their club offers diversion in acquainting them with other topics related to their field and of interest to both faculty and students. The club was responsible for making the rag dolls sold at the Christ Child Society Bazaar to benefit needy mothers in South Bend. A breakfast for four at Riedinger House was the prize to the winners of the annual raffle sponsored by the club. Each year it attempts to interest its members in things old and new in the field of domestic science.

Glee Club

Under the direction of Mrs. Lawrence Pate, Saint Mary's Glee Club presented two concerts during the year. The first was the Christmas carol concert which introduced its audience to the true beauty and religious significance of the season. The second concert was given together with the Notre Dame Glee Club. It included selections from the Christiansen Suite and Bach.

Schola

Providing a functional means of learning the beautiful liturgy of the Church, the Schola Cantorum a capella choir, leads the student body in the Missa Cantata. The choir consists of a select group of students. Their repertoire is drawn from the quantity of Gregorian mass chants and hymns approved by the Church, as well as from the works of the polyphonic and modern composers.

Blue Mantle = = Chimes

assistant editor; Susan Caron, photography editor; Louise Brady, business manager; Louise McGlynn, advertising manager; Patricia Moran, art editor assisted by Patricia Webb; Mary Mackey, staff photographer; Mary Louise Lieber, snapshot editor; Lois Gamble, circulation manager; and June Mulvihill, copy editor.

Although the Saint Mary's quarterly, Chimes, has become an institution here at school, it is still young at heart in spite of its more than fifty years of publication.

Nannie Shanahan, editor-in-chief, worked tirelessly to make the publication a true outlet for student interest and ability. Margaret Mary Miller, business manager, Patricia Miller, assistant editor, and Therese Murphy, associate editor, completed the staff. Student contributions made to the magazine include essays, short stories, feature articles, poetry, and book reviews. Ever on the lookout for new material and talent, Chimes seeks to be a vital expression of the spirit of Saint Mary's.

Static = Post

Jane Ragen    Patricia Theiss
Mary Rita Crowe    Mary Mudd

Static is the pride and joy of the journalism classes at Saint Mary's. This four-page newspaper is published monthly and combines news, features, and photographs. In 1949, the Static reached its twenty-third year of publication. Members of the staff point with pride to the completeness of each issue. Its concisely written articles are of interest not only to the Saint Mary's girl, past and present, but to her family and friends. Editor-in-chief, Mary Margaret Herr, is in charge of the publication. All Static editors are journalism minors. Miss Mina Costin is the faculty adviser.

Another publication at Saint Mary's is The Thursday Morning Post which is a weekly product of the beginning journalism class. This news carrier, which is made up during a two-hour period each Thursday morning, is small but mighty. Typewritten columns are pasted on a large piece of cardboard. Every week the little newspaper occupies a prominent spot on the bulletin board in the lobby. Members of the class take turns being editor. But no matter who is editor the Post is acclaimed for its colorful decorations and its humorous news coverage.

Education Forum

The education forum is a new association at Saint Mary's. It was formed in May, 1948, by request of the girls majoring and minoring in education who wanted to give the other students an opportunity of knowing more about the education department. The forum is open to everyone, therefore, who cares to attend the meetings. The purpose of it is to make the students better informed on educational problems through group discussion and lectures. Since the group is informal, there are only two officers, Mary Lou Manion, chairman, and Claire Daley, secretary. The membership quota is not set and the girls hope that eventually the forum will attain the status of a regular club.

The forum has met seven times throughout the year and the meetings are conducted by a program committee appointed each time by the chairman of the group. This committee decides the discussion for the following meeting and plans it. The first get-together was a social affair planned to interest the girls in the activity. At Christmas time, the foreign students gave accounts of the season as found in their respective countries. There have also been discussions on the President's Commission on Education and Mr. Allen, the superintendent of schools in South Bend, spoke to the girls on the teaching field.

Riders Club

Highlighting the activities of the Riders Club this year were early and late morning rides followed by a tasty breakfast or brunch in the club house. The climax came on May 29, at the annual Horse Show when the girls exhibited their equestrian skill and the outstanding riders received awards.

Women's Athletic Association

The athletic activities sponsored by W.A.A. are an important part of the Saint Mary's girl's year. The hockey, volleyball, and basketball tournaments aim at the promotion and recognition of good sportsmanship. Every girl is eligible for membership in W.A.A. but the requirements are participation in one major sport and two minor sports and a number of service credits received for help on the club's programs. On Sport's Day, medals, emblems, sweaters, and blazers are awarded to those who have exhibited outstanding ability and spirit throughout the year.

Commuters Club

The Commuters' Club is composed of all day students attending Saint Mary's and those whose homes are in South Bend, Mishawaka, or Niles, Michigan. The purpose of it is to foster a union of interests among the students living off campus. The 1948-1949 activities were inaugurated September 5, with a back-to-school picnic followed by the Mother-Daughter-Faculty Tea. December brought the Commuters-Villager Clubs' Christmas party and the Easter Luncheon rounded out the year's social events. An interesting project of the club was the making of scrapbooks for the Crippled Children's Hospital to be opened soon in South Bend.

Thomists Club

The Thomists strive to follow Saint Thomas Aquinas, their patron, who says, "In this life there is nothing so like ultimate and perfect happiness, as the life of those who contemplate truth." A special activity of the club was correspondence with the Newman Clubs of a limited number of midwestern universities.

On March 7, a program to honor Saint Thomas began with Mass and a general communion. At a formal convocation the principal points of previous discussions on the subject of authority were presented. A dinner for the faculty and students ended the program.

Columbine

The Columbine Club, organized for the dramatic development and entertainment of its members, has been primarily interested this year in reviewing Broadway productions. Membership is open to those who have acquired sufficient points through participation in the various dramatic activities offered throughout the school year.

The Club sponsored the annual play tournament in which each class independently produced its own one-act play. The silver cup, awarded to the best performance, was given this year to the seniors for their presentation of "Ladies of the Mop," directed by Nancy Branton. They participated also in the Christmas play, "A Divine Child is Born," and the spring play. A benefit was sponsored by the Columbine Club in order to raise money for better lighting equipment for the auditorium stage.

Saint Mary's Alumnae Association

An indispensable organization at Saint Mary's is its alumnae which keeps our family together after school days have passed. This year the Alumnae Association is celebrating its seventieth birthday since its foundation in 1879. Today it has a membership of 1800 former Saint Mary's girls, and its clubs are active throughout the United States. Not a little of the credit for this achievement goes to its executive director, Marion McCandless, who is a familiar campus figure and a faithful Saint Mary's girl. She is ably assisted by Miss Helen Carroll, alumnae secretary, and Miss Margaret Meredith, assistant treasurer.

Queen's Page

Each year a dance chairman is elected by the individual classes to reign as general chairman and queen of the class dance. They have the privilege of choosing their committee heads who work with them on the preparations for the dance. The queens for this year in the order of their reign were Barbara Hepting, sophomore; Margaret Kessell, junior; Joe Anne Cummings, freshman; Patricia Webb, senior.

Two inter-class formal dances are held each year also. Mary Ann Fellingner, vice-president of the Sodality, and Joan Midkiff, president of the Mission Club, were co-queens of the Charity Ball. The Spring Formal, held in May, had Suran Caron, president of the sodality, as its queen.

From among the nominees chosen by the sophomore class, the entire student body votes for the girl they wish to reign over the snow festival. Her court is made up of one girl from each of the other classes. These ladies-in-waiting are selected by their classmates. This year, Meg Schrock, general chairman of the carnival, was chosen as the queen of Snow Daze.

Lances

The sophomore class opened the year of formal dances at Saint Mary's with their "Midnight Masquerade" cotillion on October 22. Gene Hull and his orchestra played for the dancers. The bids were black eye-masks carrying out the masquerade theme. The Charity Ball was held November 19 with dancing in both the Louis XVI ballroom and in the Lounge. The juniors chose February 4 for the date and "Heartbreaker" as the theme for their prom. The decorations featured a miniature mountain and waterfalls. The freshmen's "Mandarin Mood" was held on April 22 with decorations centered in a Chinese theme. A Chicago orchestra played and fans were used as bids. Spring Formal was held on April 29 with orchestras playing in both the Lounge and the Louis XVI ballroom. The seniors closed the formal dancing season with their Ball, Songs to Remember". It was a two-day affair, for on May 13, the formal ball was held in the Lounge, and on Saturday afternoon, May 14, a tea dance was held in the Louis XVI ballroom. The bids were white leather printed in gold and they contained the songs to be especially remembered by the class of 1949.

The mad scramble of last minute packing was interrupted this year long enough for the holiday spirit abounding in Saint Mary's halls to take over completely when the traditional Christmas party was held. The holiday arrangements were under the direction of the junior class. The decoration of the festive Christmas tree in the lounge, however, was the work of the freshman class.

Jean Malooly, junior class president, was general chairman of the evening. Helen Kennedy and Marjorie McKeon were in charge of the dining room decorations and Margaret Quinn and Joanne Finke of entertainment.

Christmas Party

This year, a new motet, composed by Sister M. Patrick, C.S.C., was sung by a group of juniors at the candle-lighting ceremony. The words which were taken from the "Lumen Christi" of Holy Saturday and from the Introit of the second Mass of Christmas day, reflected perfectly the significance of our traditional ceremony in which candles were lighted from the flame of the sanctuary lamp in the Chapel of the Holy Spirit.

Following the formal dinner, all adjourned to the Stapleton Lounge for entertainment. Margaret Gardner sang "The Holly and the Ivy" while Jean Malooly hung the Yuletide wreath. Again, this year, Santa paid us a long awaited visit in the person of Mary Jo Capen and checked up on all Saint Mary's girls, represented by Mary Cucchi and Jean Suelzer in the form of mighty "mighty mice."

Sister M. Madeleva then addressed the faculty and students, impressing upon them the real meaning of Christmas. She said, "We spend Christmas at home, but here at Saint Mary's, we keep Christmas."

Christmas Party

Winter Carnival

The fourth annual Winter Carnival found four hundred couples here during our "Snow Daze" without much help from the weather man. But inside the Rec, which has been transformed into Snowed Inn, and in the halls, murals of skiers and skaters lent all the realism of a winter's day. Some true sportsmen trusted the ice for skating. The more timid found fun in dancing to records in the Rec. Hamburgers and brownies were the main attractions of the buffet supper planned by food chairman, Mary Terry. After dinner the four classes combined voices and wit in presenting an excursion on the Snow Boat. Captain of the crew was Mary Louise Willenbrink, entertainment chairman.

Snow Queen Meg Schrock had a bright court of four, chosen from each class: Emily Dennard, Mary Pat Feeley, Barbara Berry, and Mary Spencer.

Those chairmen who were behind the scenes were Helen Cummings, decorations; Noreen Doran, queen election; Eileen Bernier, hostess; Barbara Berry, bids; Dora Brooks Smoot, arrangements; Patricia McDermott, ice revue; Mary Sue Guthrie, invitations; Mary Anne Mouch, publicity.

Variety Show

"Through the Days" was the theme of the annual Variety Show presented on March 10 and 11 under the general chairmanship of Catherine Motta.

Jean Murphy headed the committee of script writers who carried out the theme in songs and dialogue. Typical school scenes, such as the Sunday tea dance and the lobby at 5:00 were presented. Dances, under the direction of Nancy Bartley were interspersed throughout the various scenes with a final scene entitled "Serenade in Blue" as a climax.

In charge of publicity and programs for the show was Mary Jo Mack; Mary Ann Heaton handled the tickets. Joanne Clair was stage manager, and acting under her were Loanne Casey, head of the lighting committee, Catherine Liebmann, in charge of costumes, and Mary Lou Kelly, head of properties committee. Mary Lou O'Donnell and her committee provided the scenery for the various acts.

Basketball

At Saint Mary's, basketball heads the list of sports activities in popularity for players and spectators alike. Class colors are worn and pennants flown not only during the games, but the days of the tournament. During the tournament days, the dining room echoes the songs of the hopeful teams, and skits are presented to encourage them. The winning class team has its name inscribed on the trophy which is handed down from year to year.

The team captains and managers for the 1949 season were: seniors, Patricia O'Keefe and Marilyn Hennebry; juniors, Mary Hovorka and Rita Wilson; sophomores, Patricia Kelly and Elizabeth Barr; freshman, Margaret Ann Habig and Janet Finke. Lois Gamble was basketball chairman.

The 1949 volleyball championship games added much excitement to the year's sports program. Impetus was given to the tournament by a pep rally given in the Kell. The seniors and sophomores were eliminated in the first games and the final game, ending in a 26-26 tie between the freshmen and juniors, necessitated an overtime. The freshman distinguished themselves by scoring three consecutive points and winning the championship.

The team captains were: Mary Jo Mack, senior; Geneal Kramer, junior; Catherine Gallivan and Kathryn Luman, sophomore; Celeste Miller and Marilyn Dargis, freshman.

Sports Day

It was Sport's Day at Saint Mary's and in Le Mans court everyone was watching the class floats circling in splendor the drive, as each class tried to out-shout the other for parade laurels. Lunch in picnic fashion was served in the back court while the lay-faculty volleyball game caused most of the hilarity in the background. The next main attraction was the kite flying contest, and those who didn't participate were encouraged to try out for the comic races which included the potato sack race, three-legged race, and relay race. At the same time, the jumping met was in full swing. After the champs were named, everyone shifted her attention to the tennis courts for the tournament matches played by Saint Mary's pre-professionals. The canoe races, which were the last event of the day, gave the spectators more than they could ask for their money.

The triumphs of the day were awarded in the Social Hall after the totaling of the class scores. Honors go to the W.A.A. for one of the best-loved annual Saint Mary's events.
